Business is the study of organisational management within an economic context. The course covers a wide range of topics including the major functional areas of businesses and organisations, with a theme of analysis and strategic decision-making, running throughout.

During the first year, learners examine the basic principles of how the UK economy works and how organisations attempt to succeed in an ever-changing political and economic environment. This includes tactical approaches towards leadership and management, business marketing, operations and finance, as well as Human Resources (the management of people).

In year two, learners will deepen their understanding of business management through exploring how businesses develop strategy through the use of theoretical modelling and analysis.
